This week we have continued to look at the different features of a newspaper report. We have looked at direct and indirect speech as well as the punctuation of apostrophes to identify singular and plural possession. In maths we have started to multiply fractions by whole number.

English

Next week we will plan our own newspaper article based on Neil Armstrong's moon landing.

You could:

- Conduct some more research for interesting facts to include in your report.
- Explain to an adult everything you know about the moon landing already
- Think carefully about the quotes you are going to use in your report.
Remember we don't want too many!

Year 5

Next Week

Beginning:

18/06/2018

Maths

Next week we will begin to look at area and perimeter.

You could:

- Find and write a definition of the word area.
- Find and write a definition for the word perimeter.
- Recap what you already know about area and perimeter with an adult.
- Think about what calculations are involved when working out area and perimeter.
